

Antarctic Legacy of South Africa (ALSA) Copyright.

Statement: The items and the content of this website are subject to copyright protection. Reproduction of the content, or any part of it, other than for research, academic or non-commercial use is prohibited without prior consent from the copyright holder.

ALSA has to take different policies into account and apply it accordingly to contributors consent. Therefore no images of a too personal nature and no Interviews and their transcription are open accessible. If any researcher needs access to this content, they can contact ALSA. As items are only to be used for non-commercial use consent has to be asked from ALSA and the specific contributor of the material (i.e. in publishing a book etc.)

In the Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research (SCAR) report no 39 of June 2011, published by the International Council for Science; the SCAR data policy states the following:

“The only exceptions to this policy of full, free, and open access are:

- Where human subjects are involved, confidentiality must be protected;
- Where data release may cause harm, and where specific aspects of the data may need to be kept protected (for example, locations of nests of endangered birds).”

The National Research Foundation statement on Open Access (1 March 2015)

“The NRF recognises the importance of Open Access to science and research while at the same time appreciating that Open Access will continue to evolve in response to societal needs, achieving overarching policy harmonisation and new innovative publishing business models. In addition, the data supporting the publication should be deposited in an accredited Open Access repository, with the provision of a Digital Object Identifier for future citation and referencing.”

Images and documents consent

I, the undersigned hereby warrant that I have copyright over or have the authority to share and grant the Antarctic Legacy of South Africa(ALSA) Project unlimited access to any pictures, documents, slides, images, objects or any material in my possession. I hereby grant ALSA permission to collate the material for the Legacy's digital archive (repository).

It is understood that the copyright remains with the owner (contributor) of the material and that the copyright holder will be acknowledge by ALSA accordingly. I grant permission for the use of the material for research purposes, including any resulting publications and presentations, provided that ALSA will make no financial gain from this material. I also agree that ALSA will not be held liable for any infringement of copyright laws on material to which I, or the institution I represent, have enormously granted permission to use for research purposes

Interview consent

The interview will consist of a number of questions relating to your experiences with/on Marion Island and/or Gough Island and/or in Antarctica. The contributor's participation in the interview will give a more complete knowledge of South Africa's involvement in the sub-Antarctic and Antarctic, and will contribute to conserving its legacy.

Participation in this interview is voluntary. Material from earlier interviews may be used by SME van der Watt for the purposes of her DPhil dissertation at the University of Stellenbosch, South Africa and subsequent publication that result there from. The contributor's identity may be disclosed in the copies presented for examination, but you may request full anonymity for the copies, whether in digital or paper format, that will be available in the public domain (e.g. library copies, related academic papers and books). With your consent, the interviews may be made available in an oral history archive.
